JOHN MINTON (1917-1957)

cat. 1

John Minton (1917-1957)

The Dark Wood, c.1950

Signed l.r.: John Minton and bears title (to reverse of backboard)

Pen, ink and sepia wash, 24 by 31 cm

Minton travelled to Jamaica in the final months of 1950. In the following year he worked on his sketches from that trip to produce an entire exhibition at Lefevre Gallery of work based on his time there, as well as the monumental painting "Jamaican Village" which he exhibited at the 1951 Royal Academy Summer Exhibition. The present, intense, landscape drawing is also probably a Jamaican subject.

cat. 2

John Minton (1917-1957)

Portrait of a seated man, Eric Verrico

Pencil, 35 by 20 cm

Exhibited: "John Minton: A Centenary", Pallant House Gallery, Chichester, July - October 2017
(catalogue: Fig 75 Illustrated page 71)

Provenance: Jeffrey Bernard, sold to Nicholas Luard; Nicholas and Elisabeth Luard

cat. 3

John Minton (1917-1957)

Portrait of A Young Man - Kevin Maybury

Pen and ink, 32 by 25 cm

cat. 4

John Minton (1917-1957)

Seated Man

Pen and ink with wash, 37.5 by 27.9 cm

Provenance: A gift from the artist to Feliks Topolski; Christie's, London May 14, 1992

cat. 5

John Minton (1917-1957)

A Study of Flowers

Signed l.r.: John Minton

Pen and ink with watercolour, heightened with white, 19 by 22.5 cm

This watercolour was probably painted whilst John Minton lived in Bedford Gardens, Notting Hill Gate, London between 1943-1947. It is likely to have been a commercial piece for a magazine article. Minton shared his large top floor artist's studio with Robert Colquhoun and Robert MacBryde.

cat. 6

John Minton (1917-1957)

Beating Sheepskins, Salle, 1953

Signed and dated u.l.: John Minton/1953

Watercolour over pen and ink, 26.5 by 36 cm

Exhibited: London, Lefevre Gallery, "New Paintings by John Minton", December 1953, no.18

Minton travelled to Morocco in 1952 with his friend, the actor Norman Bowler, exhibiting a number of works from that trip at the Lefevre Gallery at the end of 1953. This scene of the city of Salle was no.18 in that show.

cat. 7

John Minton (1917-1957)

Figures in a landscape

Signed l.l.: John Minton

Pen and ink, 24 by 31 cm

cat. 8

John Minton (1917-1957)

Mr and Mrs Weizmann at the table

Pen and ink, 24 by 29 cm

Provenance: the Collection of the late Lord & Lady Weidenfield

Lord Wiedenfield served as Chief of Cabinet to Chaim Weizmann when he became first president of Israel in 1949.

cat. 9

John Minton (1917-1957)

Portrait of the Artist's Brother, Richard, 1939

Inscribed, dated and signed u.r.: Richard/Dec 31st 1939/Minton

Pen and sepia ink, 36.5 by 28 cm

Minton's younger brother Richard was one of only a handful of people from whom he would accept criticism. Richard had a natural flare for illustration in his own right and Minton was greatly effected by his death in active service near Antwerp in 1944.

cat. 10

John Minton (1917-1957)

The Rat Race, 1955

Signed l.l.: John Minton and with further inscriptions (verso)

Watercolour and bodycolour over pen and ink, 21.5 by 21 cm

Exhibited: British pictures 2014, The Maas Gallery, London, July 2014, No. 35; "John Minton: A Centenary", Pallant House Gallery, Chichester, July - October 2017 (catalogue: Fig 4, Illustrated page 9)

"The Rat Race" about an inspiring saxophonist and a dancer in New York, was a play by Garson Kanin first staged on Broadway in 1940.

cat. 11

John Minton (1917-1957)

KEITH VAUGHAN (1912-1977)

cat. 17

Keith Vaughan (1912-1977)

Design for Ballet

Gouache over pen and ink, 16 by 20 cm

Provenance: Wenlock Fine Art; Edge Fine Art; John Constable April 2014

In 1929 Vaughan's mother took him to see his first ballet, a production by Diaghilev at the Royal Opera House with Serge Lifar as 'The Prodigal Son'. This design for ballet was done almost certainly in 1936 and similar works have also appeared at Christie's dated to that year (see Christie's sale, June 10 1988 lot 372). See also Austin Desmond exhibition (undated catalogue) when two designs with columns were shown as well as three other designs for ballet.

cat. 18

Keith Vaughan (1912-1977)

Two Figures, 1943

Signed and dated l.r.: Keith Vaughan/43

Ink and gouache, watercolour washes, 16 by 20.3 cm

Provenance: The Redfern Gallery; Wenlock Fine Art

Literature: Journals and Drawings, Keith Vaughan 1966, reproduced page 23

Vaughan began his first journal in August 1939, with a group of four journals about his time at Eden Prisoner of War Camp in North Yorkshire following in 1944 and 1945, and a final journal from 1975 to 1977. The journals give an extraordinary insight into his personal thoughts, his artistic development, as well as his increasingly volatile mental state. A number of works in this collection were used as illustrations in the published journals.

cat. 19

Keith Vaughan (1912-1977)

Illustration for "The Spirit of Jem"

Pen and black ink, 11.4 by 19.6 cm

Provenance: Redfern Gallery, London; Wenlock Fine Art (June, 1996); John Constable (August 2008)

Prepared for the book by P.H. Newby (1947) but not used. Compare the illustration on page 121 of the book, published by John Lehmann, 1947. The Museum of the University of Aberystwyth purchased the complete set of 41 original pen and ink illustrations for P.H. Newby's "The Spirit of Jem" (1947) together with 69 photographs and 363 items of printed ephemera, proofs, magazine advertisements, book jackets etc. The latter formed Vaughan's personal archive of his output as an illustrator and graphic designer. For another illustration for "The Spirit of Jem" see also cat.no.26.

Burning Streets, 1942

Signed with initials l.r.: KV and inscribed and dated 1942 Burning streets 1942

Ink, wash and watercolour, 9.5 by 13.5 cm

"Burning Streets" is strongly influenced by the work of Graham Sutherland whose powerful images of London during the Blitz date (for the most part) from the previous year. Vaughan met Sutherland at the same date and he showed Vaughan how to harness the mixed media of watercolour, gouache, ink and wax resist to great and dramatic effect. Vaughan described the results of this "as baffling and exciting as Blake" (see Malcolm York, "Keith Vaughan, his life and work", Constable, 1990, p.77).

Provenance: With Preston's Art Gallery, Bolton, where acquired by Professor Ronald Pickvance, June 1966

cat. 37

Keith Vaughan (1912-1977)

Superflumina Babylonis, c.1960

The first inscribed 'Superflumina Babylonis' (lower left)

Pen, ink and sepia wash

16 by 16 cm; and 16 by 20 cm (two works framed as one)

Provenance: Redfern Gallery 1996; Peter Cotterill

The title of this work, "Super Flumina Babylonis", relates to Psalm 137 and in English translates to "By the rivers of Babylon". The psalm is one of most powerful and evocative in the Old Testament and relates to the period of the Israelites in exile. It has often been set to music . The figure in the smaller work is possibly playing a lute (or similar) and the lower figure, appears perhaps to be playing a harp or hanging it from a tree (another reference to the psalm text).

cat. 38

Keith Vaughan (1912-1977)

Dark Assembly, 1959

With the artist's studio stamp, date inscription (on label on backboard)

Wash over pen and black ink, 24 by 28 cm

Provenance: With Nina Zborowska, sold to Wenlock Fine Art, sold to John Constable March 2006

Probably drawn when the artist was in America.
